As a professional company which operates in over 20 countries globally, Ausenco is committed to promoting workplace diversity. We recognise, respect and value people based on ethnicity, gender, age, race, religion, ability, nationality and sexual orientation.

Under our overarching Diversity policy, we have developed standards and procedures to guide our recruitment processes, retention strategies, learning and development programs, and talent management and succession planning approach, to ensure gender equality and to build an inclusive workforce.

In addition, our Board's Remuneration Committee is responsible for assessing the achievement against diversity objectives on an annual basis, including but not limited to the representation of women at all levels of the organisation.

Late last year, our Chief Executive Officer (CEO), Mr. Zimi Meka has joined an initiative to promote workplace gender diversity, called the Queensland Male Champions of Change. During the launch, our CEO reinforced our commitment to attracting the best possible talent to Ausenco, developing and then promoting them, regardless of gender.

We recognize that we are at the early stages of this journey, but it is important that we are "in the game".
